

V2

1984

Government holds an economic summit

Story: Government and industrial development

Part of page 4 – Ending intervention, 1980s and 1990s

Economic summit, 1984

Cook, M., 2011c

After winning the 1984 election, the new Labour government held an economic summit to which industry representatives were invited. The summit was presented by the government as an opportunity to participate in planning development. The opening, shown here, was held in Parliament's debating chamber. While many of those participating were enthusiastic, some branches of government (notably Treasury) saw the summit as a wasteful excursion into collective decision-making about matters best left to the market.

About this item

Alexander Turnbull Library, Dominion Post Collection (PAColl-7327)

Reference: EP/1984/4238/34

Photograph by Phil Reid

Permission of the Alexander Turnbull Library, National Library of New Zealand, Te Puna Mātauranga o Aotearoa, must be obtained before any re-use of this image.

How to cite this page:

Megan Cook. 'Government and industrial development', Te Ara - the Encyclopedia of New Zealand, updated 28-Sep-11
URL: <http://www.TeAra.govt.nz/en/government-and-industrial-development/4/2>

All text licensed under the Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial 3.0 New Zealand Licence unless otherwise stated. Commercial re-use may be allowed on request. All non-text content is subject to specific conditions. © Crown Copyright.

