New Zealand Political Reform League

ARTICLE from the Encyclopaedia Britannica Get involved Share Like

New Zealand Political Reform League, byname Reform Party, conservative political party formed from various local and sectional organizations that took power in 1912, following a general election in 1911, and held control of the government until 1928. The Reform Party first acted as a united group in 1905, but it was not formally constituted and organized along party lines until after the 1911 election.

Based primarily on urban business interests and the small farmers of the North Island dairy industry, the Reform Party won the 1911 election by a promise to transform agricultural leasehold property into freehold on terms that would enable ... (100 of 215 words)
