

The fall of Kororāreka

11 March 1845

MCH, 2020f

1845 P.62

In the early hours of 11 March 1845, several hundred Ngāpuhi fighters attacked Kororāreka (Russell). While the settlement had declined since the capital moved from nearby Okiato to Auckland in 1841, it was still the fifth largest town in New Zealand and a major trading and ship-provisioning centre.

Hōne Heke and Kawiti were key figures in the attacking forces. Their motives for fighting were complex. Heke wanted the Māori-language version of the Treaty of Waitangi to be honoured. He also wanted to preserve Māori independence and chiefly authority in the face of what he saw as increasing interference by the government.

The one-gun battery and two blockhouses defending the settlement were quickly captured. For a fourth, and final, time the British flag on Maiki Hill was cut down. Heke did not wish to harm the settlers, most of whom were evacuated to the ships Victoria and Active, which were anchored in the harbour.

Heke and Kawiti had achieved their objectives, and there was only a desultory exchange of gunfire until the powder magazine at Polack's Stockade was accidentally blown up by its defenders early in the afternoon. The troops then abandoned the town, which HMS Hazard began to bombard. Māori took this as licence to plunder. The British ships sailed for Auckland next day, effectively surrendering Russell to Heke and Kawiti. Between a dozen and 20 men had been killed on each side.

Kororāreka was a serious blow to the settlers, who lost an updated 3rd edition text.

Related maps

The fall of Kororareka

Related content

We have 22 biographies, 11 articles, related to The fall of Kororāreka .
Share this event

estimated £50,000 worth of property.

Read more on NZHistory

The sacking of Kororāreka – The Northern War

Kororāreka – A frontier of chaos?

Treaty events 1800-49 – Treaty timeline

Pre-1860 conflicts – New Zealand's 19th-century wars

Hōne Heke

Te Ruki Kawiti

HMS Hazard NZ Wars memorial – Memorials register

Russell - roadside stories – A frontier of chaos?

History of New Zealand, 1769-1914 – A history of New Zealand 1769-1914

Pūmuka

External links

Heke's war in the North (Te Ao Hou)

Ngāpuhi (Te Ara)

Hone Heke (DNZB)

Te Ruki Kawiti (DNZB)

The war that Britain lost (NZ On Screen)

Northern wars (Te Ara)

HOW TO CITE THIS PAGE

'The fall of Kororāreka', URL: <https://nzhistory.govt.nz/the-flagstaff-is-cut-down-for-the-fourth-and-last-time-and-kororareka-is-invaded>, (Ministry for Culture and Heritage), updated 7-Oct-2020