

(2009)

Watch ONE-MINUTE WORLD NEWS

Page last updated at 05:15 GMT, Thursday, 31 December 2009

E-mail this to a friend

Printable version

News Front Page

- Africa
- Americas
- Asia-Pacific
- Europe
- Middle East
- South Asia
- UK
- Business
- Health
- Science & Environment
- Technology
- Entertainment
- Also in the news
- Video and Audio
- Programmes
- Have Your Say
- In Pictures
- Country Profiles
- Special Reports
- Related BBC sites
- Sport
- Weather
- On This Day
- Editors' Blog
- BBC World Service
- Languages

Lord of the Rings' Peter Jackson is made Knight

New Zealand has made its most famous film-maker a knight in the reinstatement of the title for the first time in a decade.

Peter Jackson, maker of the Oscar-winning Lord of the Rings trilogy, said the award was "better than the Oscars".

Former Prime Minister Helen Clark, who had abolished British knighthoods in 2000, was made a member of the Order of New Zealand.

This is the highest honour available in the country.

It carries no honorific and is limited to 20 living New Zealanders at any one time.

Incredible privilege

Ms Clark, who now heads the United Nations Development Programme, said she "certainly would not" have accepted a damehood, but felt privileged to receive the honour.

Sir Peter's Lord of the Rings trilogy won a total of 17 Oscars, and earned him the home-grown title of Companion of the New Zealand Order of Merit in 2002.

In a written statement, Jackson described the honour as an "incredible moment."

"I didn't think anything would surpass the 2004 Academy Awards, but I was wrong," he said.

"The feeling of gratitude and pride I have in accepting this honour from my home country is profound."

Sir Peter was made a Companion of the New Zealand Order of Merit in 2002, and has "continued to excel in and significantly contribute to the New Zealand film industry", the citation for his knighthood reads.

The New Zealand Herald newspaper reported that Sir Peter was in New Zealand this month for the premiere of his latest movie, The Lovely Bones.

He remembers the early days: "When I was growing up in Pukerua Bay I spent weekends shooting war movies in my parents' vegetable garden with their Super-8 camera. I was eight years old and had no real expectation of being a film director. My dream was to work on special effects.

"One of the best things about growing up in New Zealand is that if you are prepared to work hard and have faith in yourself, truly anything is possible."

The newspaper added that Sir Peter financially supports local schools, film and arts festivals and the GiveLife New Zealand Organ Donation Awareness Charity.

The awards were among 193 given to those active in sports, the arts, charity and even theology.

Jackson is producing The Hobbit, Tintin, and a remake of The Dam Busters

ADVERTISEMENT

See how Tatura takes on the world.
Bank of New Zealand
Find out more

SEE ALSO

- Peter Jackson to adapt The Hobbit
20 Aug 08 | Entertainment
- Zombie director making 'mint choc chip' movie
25 Nov 09 | Entertainment
- Craig lands role in Tintin movie
27 Jan 09 | Entertainment
- Lovely Bones set for Royal gala
15 Oct 09 | Entertainment
- Jackson to produce Hobbit movies
18 Dec 07 | Entertainment
- Peter Jackson: Epic director
31 Jan 06 | Entertainment

RELATED INTERNET LINKS

- The Lovely Bones
- Tintin

The BBC is not responsible for the content of external internet sites

MOST POPULAR STORIES NOW

SHARED READ WATCHED/LISTENED

- Royal wedding policing 'robust'
- Bank blamed as termites eat cash
- UN team to probe abuses in Libya
- DIY subs join Colombia's cocaine trade
- France Telecom man burns to death
- Turkey demolishing peace statue
- PlayStation hacker took user info
- The strangely ubiquitous Casio F-91W
- Carl Lewis election run rejected
- Europeans urge sanctions on Syria

Most popular now, in detail

3rd

